

We are your partner

International meetings, phone conferences with London and Madrid and presentations in English have become matters of course. In the age of globalisation, good method and language skills have become essential not only for the everyday work of managers, but also for employees in international teams or projects.

Beyond this, successful communication depends on cultural understanding today. Familiarity with the customs in your business partner's home country will allow you to find just the right nuances in negotiations.

Since nuances are vital in translation as well, we successfully cooperate with native speakers to translate your contracts, websites and brochures into any European language.

We look forward to meeting you.

We are your team

Our team of lecturers has supported companies, universities and institutions in providing foreign-language qualification for their employees and students since 2003.

Our team consists of native and second-language speakers alike. All of them are certified, dedicated to their tasks and have plenty of experience in the areas of economy and didactics.

Our offering blinckmann languages and marketing offers communication and language training customised to your needs and provided on site in your company. We support clients from industry and trade, as well as authorities and service providers in the globalised business world.

Communication training

Are you wondering how to customise a presentation to your target group and subject?

Are you aiming to successfully implement change processes with your team? Successful facilitation may be a decisive factor for success. Are you still looking for the right instruments to implement this?

We support you in achieving your goals.

Customised foreign language training

Do you have an internationally aligned company that wants to provide language qualification for its employees?

This is our specialisation. Let us develop a customised concept for you.

accent Fachübersetzungen accent Fachübersetzungen has been a reliable partner for translations into any European language since 1986.

accent Fachübersetzungen became part of blinckmann languages and marketing in 2015, complementing our service range for foreign-language communication.

Our strengths

Our strengths are in personal, trustworthy and customised support. We have accompanied many of our participants in their progress with foreign languages for years.

Individual further training

We engage in a dialogue with our clients to develop lesson concepts that are tailored precisely to each company's needs. We analyse the education demand beforehand in thorough tests and interviews.

Practice-oriented exercise

We offer preparation for presentations, customer visits and multi-cultural meetings. We provide practice for business correspondence and phone calls. We want to enable our participants to securely and effectively represent their companies even in a foreign language.

Intercultural communication

Communication goes beyond grammar. Our lessons consider intercultural customs and mentalities in your conversation partners' home countries as well.

Sustainable learning

We design our training and lesson materials to enable participants to reactivate their acquired knowledge even after extended breaks. We monitor success in the form of final tests and regular reports to document learning progress.
